

Academies and achievement:
setting the record straight

Research report:

T Wrigley and A Kalambouka

Published by

Changing Schools

Contents

Executive summary	1
Introduction	4
Note: abbreviations and technical notes	6
Have academies replaced ‘underperforming’ schools?	7
Have academies led to higher academic standards?	8
Have academies made greater use of alternative qualifications?	10
How well do disadvantaged pupils achieve in academies?	13
Do major sponsors contribute to school improvement and higher standards?	17
Does academy status prevent schools falling below floor targets?	22
Are academies ensuring a broad and balanced curriculum?	24
How likely are academy pupils to attain the EBacc subjects at GCSE?	28
Are academies more likely to improve GCSE results than other schools?	30
Are longer established academies any more successful?	34
Conclusion	37
Technical notes	40
References

The research was undertaken and published by Changing Schools Ltd. The researchers were Dr Terry Wrigley, Visiting Professor, Leeds Metropolitan University and Dr Afroditi Kalambouka, Research Associate, University of Manchester.